

ICPP 2014 Travel Grants

The organizing committee of the ICPP 2014 is pleased to announce the availability of funds to support student travel and registration to attend this year's conference and workshops. We would like encourage student participation by subsidizing the travel costs of individuals who would otherwise be unable to attend the conference.

Travel Grant is supported by the National Science Foundation (NSF)

Application Process

Requests for funding will be accepted up until the last day of the conference as funding allows, but will begin making awards on August 1st, 2014. To increase your chance, requests for funding should be sent to du@cs.umn.edu before Thursday July 31, 2014.

The organizing committee of the ICPP 2014 is pleased to announce availability of funds to support student and junior faculty/researcher travel and registration to attend this year's symposium and workshops. Students receiving funding will receive up to $750 to offset the hotel expenses at Commons Hotel (Conference Site) and registration fee. Travel grant is available to students and postdoctoral researchers from only US schools only since the grant is supported by US NSF.

Eligibility Requirements

Any graduate student or a postdoctoral researcher from US schools may apply. Any recipient of a travel grant must register for the conference and workshops, and may be asked to help some conference/workshop events and/or registration desk as a volunteer. Awards will be made based on

- a) financial need to attend the conference and workshops,
- b) minority and under-represented students,
- c) students from historical under-represented and minority institutions,
- d) student authors presenting at the conference or workshops,

Application Materials

To apply, the student's advisor should send a one paragraph statement of financial need, student's progress toward graduation, student's CV, and research in areas related to ICPP.

Application materials should be sent by email to: du@cs.umn.edu with the subject:
